That seems to be the case. First, IAC then after IAC makes recommendations, SBOH conducts three public hearings geographically distributed throughout the state, and then SBOH develops a report with recommendations to Director. Director then takes their recommendations into consideration to move forward with rules. No statutory changes are necessary, which is a plus, but those meetings would be pretty rough, I'm sure...

From the Communicable Disease Prevention Act:

(410 ILCS 315/2) (from Ch. 111 1/2, par. 22.12)

Sec. 2. The Department of Public Health shall promulgate rules and regulations requiring immunization of children against preventable communicable diseases designated by the Director. Before any regulation or amendment thereto is prescribed, the Department shall conduct a public hearing regarding such regulation. In addition, before any regulation or any amendment to a regulation is adopted, and after the Immunization Advisory Committee has made its recommendations, the State Board of Health shall conduct 3 public hearings, geographically distributed throughout the State, regarding the regulation or amendment to the regulation. At the conclusion of the hearings, the State Board of Health shall issue a report, including its recommendations, to the Director. The Director shall take into consideration any comments or recommendations made by the Board based on these hearings. The Department may prescribe additional rules and regulations for immunization of other diseases as vaccines are developed.

The provisions of this Act shall not apply if:

1. The parent or guardian of the child objects thereto on the grounds that the administration of immunizing agents conflicts with his religious tenets or practices or,
2. A physician employed by the parent or guardian to provide care and treatment to the child states that the physical condition of the child is such that the administration of one or more of the required immunizing agents would be detrimental to the health of the child.

It generally meets once a year but has been somewhat dependent on who is director at the time and what they want the group to discuss. In digging into the statute, it doesn't seem to specify how long, but I had been under the impression it was required to meet once yearly. There hasn't been much of an appetite previously to meet more often, but it can absolutely happen. Karyn Lyons is the liaison for the IAC and was working on putting something together for a meeting before the end of 2022. She was preparing to send you an email for meeting dates, but if there is a general timeline (or specific dates if you prefer), we can start getting it on the calendar.

I don't have specific dates, but I do think a meeting before the end of 2022 would be beneficial. I would love to get a better sense of how to mobilize this Committee, as I imagine we will face continued challenges in promoting vaccines in the short term. Thanks, Heidi.

I don't have specific dates, but I do think a meeting before the end of 2022 would be beneficial. I would love to get a better sense of how to mobilize this Committee, as I imagine we will face continued challenges in promoting vaccines in the short term. If Karen, you, or others have ideas, please feel free to let DO and me, specifically, know.

It generally meets once a year but has been somewhat dependent on who is director at the time and what they want the group to discuss. In digging into the statute, it doesn't seem to specify how long, but I had been under the impression it was required to meet once yearly. There hasn't been much of an appetite previously to meet more often, but it can absolutely happen. Karyn Lyons is the liaison for the IAC and was working on putting something together for a meeting before the end of 2022. She was preparing to send you an email for meeting dates, but if there is a general timeline (or specific dates if you prefer), we can start getting it on the calendar.

That seems to be the case. First, IAC then after IAC makes recommendations, SBOH conducts three public hearings geographically distributed throughout the state, and then SBOH develops a report with recommendations to Director. Director then takes their recommendations into consideration to move forward with rules. No statutory changes are necessary, which is a plus, but those meetings would be pretty rough, I'm sure...

From the Communicable Disease Prevention Act:

(410 ILCS 315/2) (from Ch. 111 1/2, par. 22.12)

Sec. 2. The Department of Public Health shall promulgate rules and regulations requiring immunization of children against preventable communicable diseases designated by the Director. Before any regulation or amendment thereto is prescribed, the Department shall conduct a public hearing regarding such regulation. In addition, before any regulation or any amendment to a regulation is adopted, and after the Immunization Advisory Committee has made its recommendations, the State Board of Health shall conduct 3 public hearings, geographically distributed throughout the State, regarding the regulation or amendment to the regulation. At the conclusion of the hearings, the State Board of Health shall issue a report, including its recommendations, to the Director. The Director shall take into consideration any comments or recommendations made by the Board based on these hearings. The Department may prescribe additional rules and regulations for immunization of other diseases as vaccines are developed.

The provisions of this Act shall not apply if:

1. The parent or guardian of the child objects thereto on the grounds that the administration of immunizing agents conflicts with his religious tenets or practices or,
2. A physician employed by the parent or guardian to provide care and treatment to the child states that the physical condition of the child is such that the administration of one or more of the required immunizing agents would be detrimental to the health of the child.

Do we have a statement on this?

My understanding is that once ACIP recommends something, the IDPH Immunization Advisory Committee could pick it up to add to the required list of school vaccines. If I'm remembering the statute correctly, there would have to be three public hearings.

Hi Allison,

Hope all is well. I'm sure IDPH is getting questions about the COVID vaccine in schools after the CDC made their suggestions, but our office has some as well.

What would the process be to mandate the COVID vaccine for children to enter school? Do you know if there is something in the works? Is it within the Governor's executive powers to mandate this?

We're getting some feedback from constituents, and we just want to be sure we're knowledgeable on the situation when we're responding.

Adding Karyn for specifics. Marielle Fricchione had been the chair but she is no longer with CDPH and had wanted to transition out of that role anyway. I don't believe there were any members of the public present at the last one, possibly because it was held exclusively remotely. @Lyons, Karyn – can you help answer Shannon's questions?
